Robin Fountain Named Interim Principal at James B. Edwards Elementary

Charleston, SC — Charleston County School District (CCSD) is proud to announce Robin Fountain as Interim Principal of James B. Edwards Elementary School. Fountain is returning to the District where she started her career in education as a teacher at Ashley River Creative Arts Elementary School in 1999.

After serving as a kindergarten and first grade teacher at Ashley River for seven years, Fountain moved to Georgia to work as a third grade teacher for the City Schools of Decatur. She eventually became an instructional coach for that school district, and in 2013 became the principal at Oakhurst Elementary, where she worked through the end of this school year. During her time as principal at Oakhurst, the school was named a "Georgia Safe Routes to School Outstanding Partner" (2015).

Fountain has been involved in other areas of education outside the classroom. Her experiences include teaching at Charleston Southern University and the College of Charleston, presenting at the Expeditionary Learning National Conference multiple times, and serving as a panel member for discussion at the National Institute for Education and the Arts.

Fountain graduated from Trevecca Nazarene University (TNU) in Nashville, TN with a Bachelor of Science in Elementary Education, and a Master of Curriculum and Instruction. She also earned her Education Specialist certification in Leadership through Valdosta State University.
